“After a successful collection event last year in Bedford, where 35 unwanted firearms were surrendered, I am pleased to work with our Health Department, Board of Health and regional partners this year to expand the opportunity for safe and secure disposal of unwanted firearms across all our towns,” said Bedford Police Chief John Fisher.

“We are proud to support our partners in Bedford, Carlisle, Concord, Lincoln and Weston with this critical public health and public safety effort,” said Middlesex Sheriff Peter J. Koutoujian. “By providing residents the opportunity to safely and securely dispose of unwanted firearms, we are reducing the chance of accidental discharge, self-harm and theft. This makes our homes and our communities safer.”

These events are being held as part of a regional campaign on gun violence prevention with a goal of protecting our children, youth and families from gun violence in homes. Removing unwanted and unsecured firearms from homes, reduces the chances of suicide, accidental discharge and theft.
